2021-2022 Gratitude Report

Dear Wonderful Donor,

Thanks to you, the 2021-2022 fundraising year was our best fundraising year yet! Programs and staff were in full effect, continuing to have a positive impact on our students' academic achievements.

In this report, we celebrate the outstanding opportunities you helped provide to Santa Monica's students through STEM programs, art classes, and classroom aides. Of particular note were the important health and wellness programs that you helped fund. As students continued to grapple with the ongoing effects of the pandemic, these programs supported their social-emotional needs. These types of programs – and others – simply would not exist without your help.

We remain incredibly thankful for your contributions on behalf of all of our students.

With gratitude,

2021-2022 Board of Directors

Our mission

To engage the community to invest in a vibrant educational experience for all students in the Santa Monica public schools.

Student Wellness Programs

Student wellness programs were a crucial component of students' education last year, especially as students continued navigating the pandemic and the stress and anxiety associated with it. It is no surprise that Santa Monica's school leaders have consistently invested additional funding provided by your donations into expanding their use of evidence-based programs to better support student well-being. Without addressing social-emotional needs, student learning suffers.

Last year, students continued gaining tools from a variety of programs that supported their social-emotional learning so they could focus more clearly on their academic success.

One such program, Responsive Classroom, aims to help teachers create safe, joyful and engaging classrooms and school communities where students develop strong social and academic skills. It also allows teachers to address discipline issues, model positive behavior, and discuss values for their classroom. Responsive Classroom was implemented at two of our elementary schools last year. In addition to teachers, some support staff members were also trained in order to work with students during unstructured times of the day, like recess and lunch. Specifically, support staff learned how to differentiate students' needs when resolving conflicts.

Another program is mindfulness, which is alive and well at our two middle schools, Lincoln and John Adams. At both schools, mindfulness instruction is built around providing instruction to the incoming class of 6th graders and ongoing practice with the 7th and 8th graders. Through this whole-school approach, regular mindfulness practice becomes a tool students internalize and can draw upon in their ongoing studies and lives. Teachers also participated in ongoing professional development through training provided by Mindful Schools to deepen their understanding of the fundamentals of mindfulness and its use in the classroom.

WELLNESS

- 3,835 students in TK-8th grade benefit from wellness programs
- 1,759 middle school students receive mindfulness instruction
- 1,102 elementary students participate in Responsive Classroom

When mindfulness skills are instilled at a younger age, students are able to call on them at older ages. Last year, Samohi's football team was about to start an away game when the opposing team started shouting racial taunts at the Samohi boys. Samohi's Athletic Director explained that at that point, the boys from Samohi stopped, paused, and took a breath before reacting. Then each of the boys helped their teammates stand down from the provocation, and, notably, not a single player was ejected from the game. Previous encounters with this team had led to far messier outcomes, but on this day, the boys drew upon their mindfulness practice and created a different outcome for themselves.

This is one of many stories that illustrate the strong foundation being built through the implementation of the Student Wellness programs. SMMUSD is far better prepared to meet the mental and physical health challenges students face today, given this foundation.

The Impact of Arts Education

Art is in abundance at Santa Monica's public schools, thanks to our donors! Last year, every elementary school student had visual arts classes, taught by P.S. ARTS. P.S. ARTS is a nationally recognized arts provider that has been giving art lessons to all elementary school students since 2014, thanks to donations to the Ed Foundation.

Funding for visual arts continues through middle and high school through the Ed Foundation's For The Arts Endowment. Every secondary art teacher receives an annual grant to help pay for materials, supplies and equipment to enrich students' art experiences. Amy Bouse, AP Drawing Teacher at Santa

ARTS

- All 3,312 elementary students get to draw, sing or perform in P.S. ARTS classes
- Grants to visual arts teachers benefit 1,192 middle and high school students
- Middle and high school students also have access to robust dance, theater and music classes

Monica High School, is grateful for the additional support her grant provides: "The Ed Foundation gives young artists quality materials to create meaningful artworks for exhibitions on and off campus. Students use these materials for all visual arts classes, including AP Studio Art, a class with a pass rate over 90%. College representatives regularly comment on the high caliber of Samohi students' art."

Researchers have linked arts education to improving math and reading skills. Students involved with the arts in school have lower dropout rates. Participating in the arts is also linked to emotional well-being.

Your gift to the Ed Foundation is giving children the gift of creativity, imagination, and so much more!

Dance, Dance, Dance

5th and 6th grade students get to dance, sing and perform, thanks to donors!

Last year was the first year 5th graders took part in jazz musical theater dance. Schools wanted to find a genre of dance that would keep students more socially distanced, and jazz musical theater dance has been a wildly successful substitute! Last year, students performed choreography from the historic musical "West Side Story," as well as a short choreography of Hip-Hop. Students from Roosevelt Elementary even performed their dance moves at our 2022 Wine Auction!

DANCE

- 582 5th graders perform jazz musical theater dance
- Credentialed teachers from Santa Monica College teach the jazz musical theater class
- 609 6th graders participate in hip-hop dance

"This type of dance allows everyone to express their individuality," said Tom Whaley, SMMUSD's Visual and Performing Arts Coordinator. "While it's mostly choreographed, this genre allows more individuality of expression. Students are proud to show it off and they enjoy it. It really gives them an opportunity to shine.”

Taught by dance faculty from Santa Monica College, this dance curriculum also allows students, who are also taking music classes, to bring their knowledge of music and apply it to dance. Students have a concept of rhythm and beat, of tempo and time.

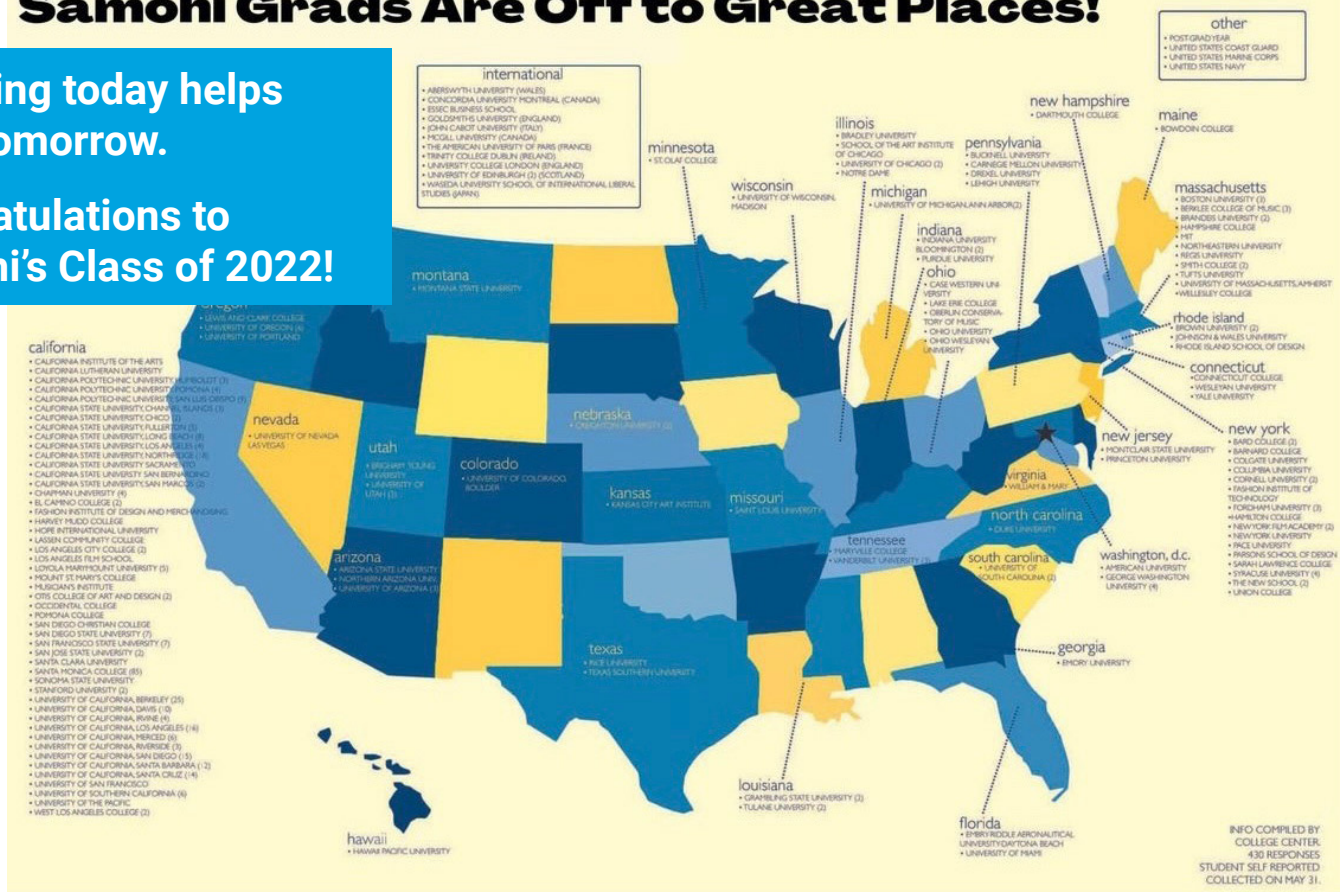

This type of dance is followed up the following year with hip-hop dance classes provided to 6th graders in their PE classes, thanks to funding from our For The Arts Endowment. Robert Gilliam (known as Mr. Robert to his students) teaches movement and hip-hop dance moves in all three Santa Monica middle schools. In these classes, students have the opportunity to explore movement, self-expression and creativity...and have fun! Robert Gilliam is an internationally acclaimed choreographer, master teaching artist, and the director of Artist Collective, a non-profit organization that provides high-quality K-12 arts education throughout Los Angeles. His original choreography has been performed by professional dance companies and at dance festivals around the world.
